

HMMG Spotlight on... Yas London

New talent
Roving Reporter
Television Presenter

HMMG continues to seek out and develop new Australian talent. What we look for is not only a future media star but a proactive creative collaborator. Yas London ticks all the boxes and was signed to HMMG in December 2010. Yas has been working on her own concepts for television and currently has one project in development with Freehand.

With a career that spans across a diverse range of industries, Yas London has always had a passion for discovering the best things in life. From her career as a professional swimmer to a police officer, this young vivacious television presenter is creating a stir and turning heads. Born and raised in Sydney Yas is fast becoming sought after talent in the entertainment industry – she’s a fresh face with the goods to back it up.

Yas has been a popular presenter on a number of programs broadcast on a variety of platforms including the host of Social on GO, roving reporter for Unseen TV, reporter at the 2010 Mardi Gras, interviewer for Vans International Pro Skate Competition and the host of Sportsmodel TV. With a can do attitude and a fearless mindset Yas approaches every opportunity with passion and enthusiasm, never being afraid to put ideas forward or offer some creative input.

In 2006 Yas joined the NSW Police Force where she was promoted to the rank of Sergeant after two years, a first in the NSW Police. Yas worked in the NSW Police Force for four years and she worked in various capacities including working on undercover assignments. She also made numerous appearances on the Nine Network’s Missing Persons Unit.

Keeping fit both physically and mentally has always been a priority for Yas. For five years she was a part of the Telstra Dolphins Australian Swim Team where she achieved a top 6 ranking in the world as a backstroke swimmer, World Cup gold and silver medals in Malmo, Sweden and was also a State and National record holder. Following her retirement from swimming Yas now enjoys keeping fit by running, surfing, rock climbing and adventure sports.

Yas has experienced more in life than any average 28 year old and is passionate about passing on her unique stories. Yas began public speaking on the Dream and Achieve Program in 2001, a program that engaged high profile athletes and actors to speak to and inspire school children to set and achieve their goals. Since then, Yas has spoken at various events and to thousands of young people about how they too, can reach for the stars.

Her work on Missing Persons Unit sparked a keen interest in television and since then Yas has worked behind the scenes learning the ropes on the production of hit TV show on Top Gear Australia. This was a great opportunity for Yas to draw upon the skills she developed while studying her Advanced Diploma in Journalism during 2002.
